

GDPR Website Statement

The GDPR has codified new requirements for how we collect, protect, and share your data. WEconnect supports this initiative, and so has created some additional documentation to demonstrate more clearly where and how we collect information, and with whom we share it.

WEconnect Recovery is proud to comply with the data collection and processing requirements of the GDPR, and we are transparent about what we collect and why. When you visit our website, we collect information about you to help us learn how people are searching for us, how people are using our website, and what they are looking for. This includes your IP address, what website you came from, your general location, and the kind of web browser you are using. We also collect general information about clicks and other statistics. These data are aggregated and anonymized before they are stored. Any personally identifiable details, such as IP address, are deleted. We do not retain any individually identifiable information, and we do not associate any information collected from our website with any individual profile or any user of the app.

This information helps us to tailor our services and search results to be more relevant to the people who are looking for us, and to help us evaluate the effectiveness of our website and how we help people learn about us.

For more information on how WEconnect cooperates with the requirements of the GDPR, please refer to our statement of GDPR compliance.

If you have questions about our collection, retention, or processing policies, please contact privacy@weconnectrecovery.com and we will be more than happy to help.
